Man charged with more than 300 sex crimes

Four others face indictments from grand jury

CALEN MCKINNEY
reporter@cknj.com

A Taylor County man originally charged with 100 counts of rape has now been charged with committing more than 300 sex crimes.

Steven Grapevine, 34, of 1034 Stoner Creek Road in Elk Horn, was indicted last Tuesday by a Taylor County grand jury.

Grapevine was charged in two separate indictments with 312 counts of a sex-related crime, three counts of criminal attempt to commit that same crime and four counts of first-degree sexual abuse. The indictment states that Grapevine allegedly sexually abused and raped two teenagers, one for nearly two years.

A Taylor County Sheriff's Office report states that deputies were told that Grapevine allegedly sexually abused a 15-year-old girl while she was visiting a home in Taylor County.

Two days later, the report states, a 19-year-old female told sheriff's deputies that, starting when she was 15, Grapevine allegedly raped her once or twice

Preparing for the Battle

Pat Jones, a teacher at Taylor County Middle School, was diagnosed with breast cancer in July. She will begin chemotherapy treatments soon. To prepare for losing her hair, doctors have told her to begin wig shopping. Above and below, Jones tries on several to see what color and style she might choose.

“How about this one?” they ask.

She takes a look and hesitantly says she will give it a chance.

Pat Jones slowly slips the wig on her head and looks at herself in the mirror. After a while, she says, “Is it me?”

Her family members, there for moral support, grin and say, “It looks great.”

Jones will soon see a different reflection in the mirror. She is set to begin chemotherapy treatments soon in a battle to beat breast cancer.

Her doctors have told her to pick out a wig now in preparation for treatments causing her medium-length blond hair to fall out.

Jones, a sixth- and eighth-grade social studies teacher at Taylor County Middle School, says she believes a positive attitude is key to winning her battle.

“I have cancer, but I don’t feel bad,” Jones said.

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

About two years ago, Jones said, her health began to go downhill. After having problems with her back, having osteoarthritis and fibromyalgia and going through menopause, she began taking some natural supplements. She says they made her feel a bit better.

Smith named new city fire chief

Council votes 6-4 in favor of hiring new chief, questions arise about lack of local candidates

reporter@cknj.com

Campbellsville Fire & Rescue has a new leader.

Kyle Smith of Frankfort was hired last Thursday night, after Campbellsville Mayor Tony Young recommended him for the job.

Council members approved Young's recommendation with a vote of 6-4, with Vangie Ford, Stan McKinney, Terry Keltner and Vicki Mullins casting the “no” votes.

Former chief Allen “A.J.” Johnson retired at the end of August after working as a firefighter for nearly 40 years and as chief for 18.

Young said the search for Johnson's replacement was extensive, with a series of three interviews. The first included Campbellsville Police Chief Tim Hazlette, Gary Magers, director of Campbellsville/Taylor County EMS, City Clerk Cary Noe and three Council members who weren't named.

In the second round, Young said, an assistant director at EMS, a police captain and a codes enforcement officer sat in on the interviews. For the final round, Young and City Attorney John Miller interviewed the candidates.

Eleven candidates were interviewed in the first phase, Young said. Six were in the second and four were interviewed in the final round.

Young said there was a lot of discussion between each panel as to who would make the best candidate for the job. He said each applicant was scored based on his or her credentials, application, resume, cover letter and education.

The most weight, Young said, was given to the opinions of the interview panels and the actual

Fruit of the Loom property still for sale

Well-known restaurant considered site, changed plans, owner says

CALEN MCKINNEY
reporter@cknj.com

It's still up for grabs.

The former Fruit of the Loom property is still for sale, and a restaurant was very close to locating at the site.

The 38-acre FOL site has been divided into several sites for potential retail stores, and efforts are being made to fill those slots.

A real estate agency in Louisville has the property for sale at a $500,000 price tag for each acre, or $19 million for the entire site.

Heartbeat Development LLC, made up of local attorney John C. Miller, Green River Marina owner and operator of demolition company HCL Inc. Dennis Brinley and Danny Pyles of Pyles Excavating Inc. in Columbia, owns the FOL property. The company was formed for the sole purpose of buying the FOL property.

The FOL building, which was once the lifeblood of Taylor County, became an eyesore after sitting abandoned for many years after FOL closed in 1998. Since then, it has been the sight of various community cleanups.

In June 2009, the site became a mixture of decaying equipment and charred rubbish after a fire destroyed much of the building.

Deed records from the Taylor County Courthouse state that Heartbeat Development purchased the building in September 2009 from Ford Lumber Building Supply Inc. in Dupont, Ind., and Terry Eaglin Motorsports Inc. of Versailles, Ind., for $750,000.

Property: Fruit of the Loom property still for sale

A "for sale" sign was placed near the property at the intersection of KY 55 and U.S. 68 when the developers first began trying to sell the space.

Miller says that has since been moved after developers learned that it was on a interstate right of way. "Even though it was not impeding anyone's view of the intersection, the state has to treat everyone equally, and they asked us to relocate it, which we did," he said.

Since purchasing the property, Miller said, Heartbeat Development has worked to demolish what remains of the FOL building. Miller says that demolition is now complete, with the exception of some concrete retaining walls and concrete pads that will be left alone for now.

"We ultimately intend to use much of the clean concrete from the demolition as fill material in the large ravines located on the Highway 68 side of the property," he said. "However, we can not do this until we acquire the right of way from the Department of Transportation."

Miller said the plans to buy the right of way and build a drainage system and new entrance to the FOL site were approved. He said some potential buyers have expressed interest in the FOL property.

"We ... were very close to leasing a lot to a well-known restaurant," he said. "However, that prospect decided not to go forward at that time. We are aggressively marketing the property, but we do not have any planned announcements at this point." In the meantime, Miller said, Heartbeat Development will continue to try and make the FOL property more presentable.

Heartbeat Development is working with Robert Schwartz of GBRE Global Commercial Real Estate Services in Louisville to attract buyers. Schwartz markets property to potential buyers from all over the United States. According to a description of the FOL site on the CBRE website, www.cbre.com, the property is divisible and is for sale or lease.

Battle: Local woman prepares for battle against breast cancer

Her cancer experience began with a regular breast screening in July at Taylor Regional Hospital. Jones, 59, began having the screenings in her 40s and has had them regularly since.

"I have to give them kudos for feeling this," she said. "I didn't feel this."

After having her screening, she was told that doctors wanted an ultrasound. "I knew I was in trouble then," she said.

After the ultrasound, Jones had a biopsy. At that point, she said, she knew something was wrong.

"I already knew it," she said. "I asked, 'Do I need to bring anybody?' She said, 'Sure.'"

If family history is an indication, Jones says she knew her chances of getting some form of cancer were high.

A sister, brother and her father died of cancer and another sister, Mary Ann Underwood, battled colon cancer in 2004. Some other family members have also had breast cancer.

Underwood has beaten her cancer.

"Early detection, that's it," she said. "If they get it early, it's not a death sentence anymore."

Jones said she was told her cancer was aggressive, so she had to decide quickly how to proceed.

"I just turned it over to God," she said.

Jones had a lumpectomy on Aug. 29 and they removed a lymph node to try and prevent her cancer from spreading there. Jones said she decided early on that she will fight her cancer.

"Put on your big girl bloomers and go," she said.

"And that's what we do," Underwood said.

Jones said she believes God has set her on a journey, and her family is there to help her through it. Jones and Underwood say they get a lot of their strength from their mother, Alice Stiles, 85.

"She's healthier than any of us," Jones said. "She's a pillar of strength."

Stiles said seeing her children battle cancer has been hard.

"Well, God's been good to me," she said. "He's seen me through it all. If it wasn't for that, I don't believe I could have taken it."

And Jones said her diagnosis has brought her closer to Underwood.

"She's there for me," Jones said.

Since having her lumpectomy, Jones has been asked to decide if she will have chemo followed with radiation treatments. The decision wasn't an easy one, she said. She at first considered trying holistic treatments.

"When I found peace with it, the decision came," she said.

Jones will soon have four chemo treatments over a 12-week period. In January, she will begin the first of 25 to 30 radiation treatments and then take medication for the next year.

Jones said she has been invited to be part of a clinical radiation study but hasn't decided if she will join.

"It's a lot to think about," she said.

She said her doctors have encouraged her to continue teaching until she has to step away from the classroom to recover.

"I'm scared," she said about her upcoming chemo treatments. But Jones said she believes she will have a great future.

"Oh, I'm looking for a bright future," she said.

"Go back to work, retire in a few years. I have a business on the side I would like to continue. [My husband Jim and I] would like to travel."

Jones said she has already gotten a wall full of cards from people wishing her a quick recovery. She says God, her family and friends will keep her strong throughout her battle.

"These are the people that are gonna help me through this," she said.

In May, Jones and her husband will have been married for 30 years.

"If chemo goes by as fast as the past 29 years, it will be OK."

Jones said family members aren't the only ones helping her battle her illness. She said she recently had some students, who at that point hadn't interacted with her much, tell her they are praying for her.

"And you thought they wouldn't have even thought about me," she said.

Underwood said several churches have added the family to their prayer lists.

"I don't know what people do without God," Jones said. "And I couldn't do it without family."

"I don't look at this as a death sentence. It's a win-win situation. I'll be able to recover and go on with my family. Or, I'll be with my heavenly father. I just hope everyone around me is ready."

Underwood, the survivor chair for Relay for Life, said she believes her sister's cancer experience will make her an even stronger witness than she is now. "She's my younger sister, but I look up to her," she said. "There's not a person that's not been touched. Every day somebody new is diagnosed. This time it just happened to be my sister."

Jones and Underwood encourage women to get annual breast screenings, and both men and women to take care of themselves. "I don't know what caused mine," Jones said. "I had no idea. The point being, I caught it."

"I thought I would have colon cancer. I never even thought about breast cancer. If we knew what caused it, we'd stop doing it."

Jones said she tries to eat only organic foods and take good care of herself. Her diagnosis has made her much more health conscious.

But above all, she said, she wants to keep the attitude that her treatment will work out fine.

"I think if you've got a positive attitude, you can make it through anything."

But Jones says she admits she is a bit worried about losing her hair.

"I've always wondered what I looked like bald," she said. "I just hope it's a cute bald."

Back at the wig shop, Jones slips on another one, this one a bit darker shade than the last. She combs it a bit and then looks at her reflection.

"I like it," her husband, Jim, responds.

"Do you?" she said.

"Let's go with it," she says.

CU named Military Friendly School for fourth year

Included in top 15 percent of universities

CHRISTINA L. KERN
Campbellsville University

Victory Media, the premier media entity for military personnel transitioning into civilian life, has named Campbellsville University to the coveted Military Friendly Schools list. The 2013 Military Friendly Schools list honors the top 15 percent of colleges, universities and trade schools that are doing the most to embrace America's military service members, veterans and spouses as students and ensure their success on campus.

"Inclusion on the 2013 list of Military Friendly Schools shows Campbellsville University's commitment to providing a supportive environment for military students," said Sean Collins, director for G.I. Jobs and vice president at Victory Media.

"As interest in education grows we're thrilled to provide the military community with transparent, world-class resources to assist in their search for schools," Collins said.

Complete survey methodology is available at www.militaryfriendly-schools.com/Article/methodology-press-kit.

The Military Friendly Schools media and website, found at www.militaryfriendlyschools.com, feature the list, interactive tools and search functionality to help military students find the best school to suit their unique needs and preferences. The 1,739 colleges, universities and trade schools on this year's list exhibit leading practices in the recruitment and retention of students with military experience.

"Campbellsville University is very pleased to once again be named among the 15 percent of higher education institutions in the nation to be named as a Military Friendly School," Dr. Michael V. Carter, president of Campbellsville University, said. "For four consecutive years, CU has received this designation as an indication of our commitment to serving the educational needs of our military veterans."

"CU has an active student group comprised of veterans now enrolled in a variety of academic programs, and we are constantly assessing ways that we can better serve this growing student population. We appreciate the service of these men and women to our nation and are appreciative of this recognition of being a university that is militarily friendly."

Dr. Roscoe Bowen, associate professor of exercise science, is faculty adviser for Semper Paratus Servire, CU's newly established veterans club. The club is a service organization whose members aim to help veterans transition from military service to academic life.

a positive and welcoming environment for all veterans," Bowen said.

"Making the transition from warrior to learner is challenging and the university's efforts to provide financial, personal and structural support can make a difference in the success of veteran learners. The members of Semper Paratus Servire are glad to partner with Campbellsville University to reach the veteran population on campus and serve their needs."

Campbellsville University and Western Kentucky University partnered to provide a Reserve Officers' Training Corps at Campbellsville University in 2006.

Students can earn a ROTC leadership studies minor from CU. The program is under the Porter-Bouvette School of Business and Economics at CU.

ROTC prepares students for responsibilities as "commissioned" officers in the active Army, Army Reserve or Army National Guard following graduation.

Students attend WKU for one day each week, and CU provides transportation to Western.

The rest of the student's studies will be on the CU campus.

Students interested in more information about military benefits can contact CU's Office of Student Records at 789-5233.

Marion clips TCHS in district opener

Cards lose three turnovers, can't score a touchdown in second half, fall 21-15

sports@cknj.com

Taylor County could not tally a second-half touchdown and dropped its district opener to visiting Marion County 21-15 on Friday night.

The Cardinals tied the game at 7-7 on Dylan Bright's 65-yard burst up the middle with 1:37 left in the first quarter.

After the Knights went up 14-7 in the second frame, Taylor County used a 48-yard drive to move within 14-13 when Hunter Christie sneaked in from a yard out with 27.7 seconds left before intermission. TCHS' two-point run failed.

Marion County head coach Jeff Robbins was ejected from the game and the Knights were assessed two unsportsmanlike conduct penalties at the half.

The Cardinals took advantage of the field situation, kicking off from the Marion 30 and the Knights started from their own 5-yard line.

A Knight sweep was caught in the backfield by Cards' Cody Bast for a safety, putting Taylor County up 15-14.

However, Marion County scored what proved to be the game-winning TD with 8:57 left in the third on QB Hayden Taylor's 28-yard sprint around left end.

Taylor County fumbled with 1:15 remaining and the Knights ran out the clock on kneel downs.

ANNIVERSARY

STEPHENS

Willard and Geraldine Stephens of Campbellsville will celebrate their 60th anniversary on Tuesday, Oct. 9. They were married Oct. 9, 1952, in Spice-land, Ind.

The Stephensens have been Campbellsville residents for the last 18 years and are active in their church. They were recipients of the Kiwanis Club's Santa's Helpers Award in 2010 for their ongoing work with the Operation Christmas Child shoe box ministry, which they brought to Campbellsville in 1998.

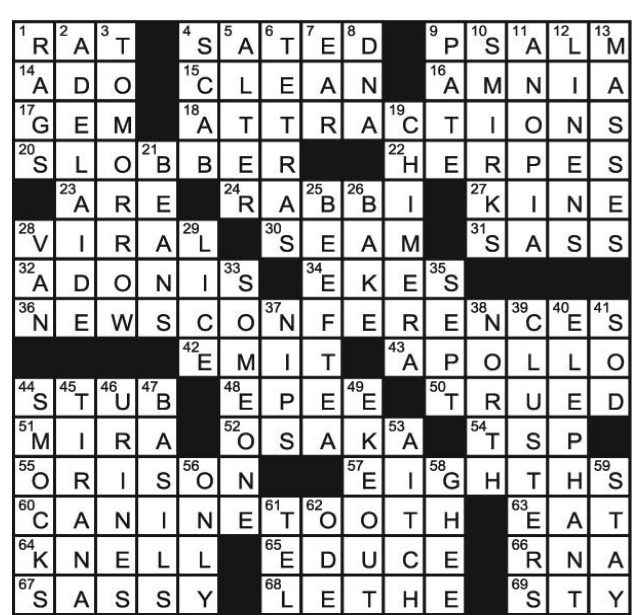

Friends and family are invited to attend an open house reception for the Stephensens at Freedom Baptist Church on Sunday, Oct. 7, from 2 to 4 p.m.

A MISCELLANEOUS WEDDING SHOWER was given for Amory Cox on May 20 at Cumberland Presbyterian Church in Owensboro. Cox married Trevor Scott on Saturday, Sept. 22. Pictured are Trevor and Amory, Donna Scott, the mother of the groom, Lorraine Bowman, Dot Conklin and Vicki Newton. The couple will live in Nashville.

CAMPBELLSVILLE CHRISTIAN CHURCH dedicated a tree at Miller Park on Aug. 26 as part of its "Rooted In God's Love" initiative. The tree was planted as a gift to the community and to serve as a lasting reminder that Campbellsville Christian Church has roots in the community and is called to live out the greatest commandment.

Smith: Named new city fire chief interviews. Young said Smith has 26 years of fire experience and is also an EMT and paramedic.

"As you can see, his list of accomplishments [is] rather lengthy and very commendable," Young said.

Smith attended the meeting to answer any questions Council members had.

Council member Dave Nunery said he knows the interview process was competitive and a good way to find a candidate. He made a motion to approve the recommendation to hire Smith, which Council member Greg Rice seconded.

Before voting, Council member Terry Keltner said "No reflection on Mr. Smith, very qualified. But I'm disappointed that we couldn't promote somebody from within our fire department. I just find that unusual that we don't have anybody qualified."

Young said there were very qualified candidates for the position and some from within the department.

"It's just that it was a competitive [process] and the decision was made that the candidate that was best suited for our situation at this time was outside."

Last month, firefighter Kenny Anderson, who applied for the chief position, was appointed interim chief. Keltner asked if one of the internal candidates who had 20 years of experience was given any extra credit for that experience. Young said that was considered.

"And it wasn't enough to change the outcome," Keltner asked.

Young said it wasn't.

In a roll call vote, Richard Jeter said he guesses he will vote for Smith, even though he doesn't know him.

McKinney said he votes "no" because he, too, is disappointed that the department couldn't promote from within.

Council member Randy Herron said he believes local staff should be considered for the position, and they were, but said if Young recommends Smith, he will agree.

After the meeting, Smith, 44, said he is originally from Hindman but has lived in Frankfort for 21 years. He said he will likely commute to Campbells-ville for a while but does plan to move to Taylor County as soon as possible. He is married to Karen Smith.

Smith said he doesn't know yet when he will start his new position.

"I am nervous and excited at the same time," he said. "I can't tell you how excited I am and I can't wait to get started."

Smith said he likely won't make any changes at the department until he settles and becomes familiar with how the department operates.

"I've got a lot to learn," he said.

Smith has five years' volunteer firefighter service and has worked as a career firefighter with Frankfort Fire & EMS for the past 21 years.

According to Smith's resume, he has worked through the ranks of firefighter, sergeant, lieutenant, captain, battalion chief and division chief. His resume states that he has many fire, rescue and other certifications and has received many firefighter and other awards.

A news release from Young's office states that Smith will assume his duties as chief in mid-October.

In a letter to Young, Smith wrote, "During my career, I have gained extensive knowledge and experience in the various aspects that fit the job description of fire chief. These include developing and maintaining operational budgets, implementing policies and procedures, creating short and long-range planning and managing personnel."

"Time management, stress management, organizing and problem solving are skills that I have performed on a daily basis for many years and am very comfortable with."

Council members Patti Phillips and Sharon Hoskins-Sanders did not attend the meeting.

Also at the Meeting:

• Council members agreed to finance the purchase of a new sanitation truck on a four-year loan payment at $3,167.97 a month. The vehicle cost $142,982, Young said, and the four-year loan with Oshkosh Capital in Columbus, Ohio was the lowest interest rate the city received, at 3.05 percent. Young said the Council has already given its approval to buy the vehicle, though financing the purchase had to be accelerated since the truck was scheduled to be delivered last Friday, earlier than expected.

a week for two and a half years.

Taylor County Sheriff's Deputy Dickie Benningfield investigated.

After Grapevine's initial arrest last month, Benningfield said deputies called Grapevine in for questioning after receiving the reports.

During an interview, Benningfield said, Grapevine admitted to some of the acts he is accused of committing. Grapevine was arrested after that interview.

Grapevine's arrest citations state that he allegedly exposed himself to one of the girls and touched her breasts.

Court records state that Grapevine admitted verbally and in a written statement to sexually abusing one of the girls and raping the other.

Bond in one of Grapevine's cases was set at $100,000 cash. In the other, bond was set at $50,000 cash. He was ordered to not have contact with his alleged victims.

If convicted, Grapevine could be sentenced to as much as 20 years in prison for each of the sex-related crimes and as much as 10 years on the sexual abuse charges.

Also indicted:

• Jay Nicholas Chappel, 29, of Tharp Drive in Campbellsville, was charged in two separate indictments with first-degree selling less than 10 dosage units of a narcotic drug, first-degree selling 10 units of a narcotic drug and two counts of being a second-degree persistent felony offender.

Bond in one case was set at $12,000 and $13,000 in the other. If convicted in both cases, Chappel could be sentenced to as much as 15 years in prison. The charge of being a persistent felony offender could increase any sentence he might receive.

• Patricia Montgomery, 26, of 2051 Hatcher Road in Campbellsville, was charged with first-degree selling 10 dosage units of a narcotic drug.

Bond was set at $15,000 cash and she was ordered to be monitored and not consume any drugs or alcohol. If convicted, Montgomery could be sentenced to as much as 10 years in prison.

• Jason K. Yocum, aka Yocum, 30, of 219 Vaughn St. in Campbellsville, was charged with first-degree selling less than 10 dosage units of a narcotic drug.

Bond was set at $1,500 cash. If convicted, Yocum could be sentenced to as much as five years in prison.

• Justin Kade Shepherd, 31, of 213 Arbor Lane in Campbellsville, was charged with first-degree possession of a controlled substance and being a first-degree persistent felony offender.

Bond was set at 10 percent of $13,000. He was ordered to not consume any drugs or alcohol. If convicted, Shepherd could be sentenced to as much as five years in prison. The charge of being a persistent felony offender could increase any sentence he might receive.

• An indictment is a legal accusation only. It does not establish guilt.
